Conclusion
We should not consider the welfare of the individual in terms of the control of the individual's activity and needs.

References

